

Synchronization with Active Directory.

Operation.

By default the synchronization is automatic and transparent, there is no import to do. SurfPass has its own list of users, which allows it to function even without Windows / Active Directory synchronization, in an autonomous way.

Each time a user connects for the first time to Windows after installing SurfPass, his account is automatically added to the list of SurfPass users.

For the user, SurfPass is completely transparent apart from the SP icon in the lower right corner, identified only as usual in the Winlogon, there is no additional SurfPass identification.

Synchronization not only works with Windows user accounts to Active Directory, but also for the local Windows user accounts.

The log keeps for a given session the name of the Windows machine and the name of the Windows user.

Correspondence of the users groups SurfPass /Activates Directory.

The group of an already existing user can easily be modified in the user's form, tab "Users".

It is possible to assign each user a personalized group automatically. To do this, simply create users groups in SurfPass with exactly the same name (caste, accents ...) and users groups involved in Active Directory.

During automatic creation, SurfPass seeks a correspondence between at least one of the AD users groups of the new account and a user group in SurfPass. If it finds it, the user is automatically added in the corresponding group.

If SurfPass cannot make a connection between a SurfPass user group and an AD user group, it chooses for group the default group defined in the "Computers profiles" / "generic" / "General".

Activation / deactivation.

The tab "Computers profiles" / "generic" / "General" contains the parameters for the mode of identification. If the "identification with Winlogon" option is checked, identification is automatic, if not it is done manually. In the latter case, it is advisable to check the option "Always display identification box in idle" in display options.

Changes must be validated with the green button "Apply" in the upper right. The change will take effect after the reopening of a user session.
